Often, once you start, dinner feels a bit less like a chore and more like “already in progress,” and the snack urge cools down.